Mies van der Rohe Pavilion

Less is More

The German pavilion at the Barcelona International Exhibition (1929) was designed by Ludwig Mies van der Rohe and Lilly Reich and hosted the Spanish King Alfonso XIII official reception to the German authorities. In this iconic work of the Modern Movement, van der Rohe (father of Modern Architecture) defined his philosophy that will inspire generations of architects. Admire the convergence of glass, steel and 4 different kinds of stone (Roman travertine, green Alpine marble, ancient green marble from Greece and golden onyx from the Atlas Mountains).

Festes de Gràcia

From 15th to 21st of August

Gràcia neighborhood festivities are, without a doubt, one of the great summer cultural events of the city. So is the ritual of decorating the streets around a specific theme: a country, an animal, a holiday... Neighbours get together to prepare the decorations, build large floating structures and, ultimately, collaborate in a friendly way to shine a common project always made with great care.

Open Air Rooftop Cinema

Ask us about the films listing

Enjoy the great classics of the cinema grazing the sky of Barcelona. This summer's selection includes feel good movies such as Grease or Notting Hill and indisputable classics such as Gilda or Breakfast at Tiffany's. All of them will be shown with the Barcelona skyline in the background and in a comfortable lounge.

Casa Amatller

Catalan Modernism

Designed in 1900 by the Catalan architect Josep Puig i Cadafalch, Casa Amatller is one of the greatest examples of Catalan Modernism, set in the Passeig de Gràcia Avenue. Preserved in its original state with all its furniture and decoration of the time, the visit to its interior invites you to take a trip back in time.
